THE MINIMAL AND EXTENDED SELF REVISITED

DAN ZAHAVI

CENTER FOR SUBJECTIVITY RESEARCH, UNIVERSITY OF COPENHAGEN

23 FEVEREIRO 2017 | SALA DE ATOS DO ISPA
18H00 - 20H00

In my talk, I will first present two different conceptions of what selfhood entails. I will next address and assess some recent criticism that the notion of a minimal self has been subjected to. Is there really something like a minimal self, and if, what is its scope and prevalence? It is for instance something that is absent in adult pre-reflective experiences, in infantile experiences, or in various forms of psychopathology?

Dan Zahavi is Professor of Philosophy and Director of the Center for Subjectivity Research at the University of Copenhagen. In his systematic work, Zahavi has mainly been investigating the nature of selfhood, self-consciousness, intersubjectivity, and social cognition from a phenomenological perspective. He is currently working and publishing on issues related to we-intentionality and group-identification. He is author and editor of more than 25 volumes including Subjectivity and Selfhood (MIT Press 2005), The Phenomenological Mind together with S. Gallagher (Routledge 2008), and most recently Self and Other (OUP 2014). He is co-editor in chief of the journal Phenomenology and the Cognitive Sciences.
